Plagiarism: Plagiarism on a college-level course is very serious. Be careful to document all ideas and do not offer someone else's work as one's own. No student should use essentially identical expressions of any material taken from books, encyclopedias, magazines, reference materials, such as encyclopedias, or the internet without proper documentation.

The consequence of plagiarism in this class is steep. The student will receive an F for the course and will be dropped. When in doubt, ask questions and then document.

Cheating: Students should do their own work. A student caught using another student's paper or an electronic device during an exam will lose credit for that exam. The student will be referred to the principal and the school counselor, and their recommendations for further punishments will be applied.
